

Student Profile

Kenneth Kahiga Mwangi is one of the student you have been supporting from the January this year. Kenneth comes from a poor background. He is the third born in a family of six. The parents resides in a mad house in a small plot of land where they grow meagre crops for their home consumption. The parents usually earn their income from casual work where they get about ksh 300 per day. This depends on availability of work especially in the constructions where his dad is usually a manual labourer.

Despite these challenges Kenneth was able to work very hard in his primary school and acquired good grades that enabled him secure an admission to a good high school in Central kenya. His performance so far is impressive, however there is still room for improvement.

Kenneth is a very responsible boy. During the school holiday he usually helps his parents in their small plot of land. He is determination doesn't deter him from getting time to do some home studies even when he is on holiday at home.

He appreciates so much the great help you offer to him (will send a video soon)
